

Deanna S. Commack currently serves as Executive Assistant to the Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director of the State Bar of Arizona. In this capacity she directly supports the CEO/Executive Director by managing a wide variety of administrative and executive related tasks, as well as setting and executing priorities.

Prior to her current position, Deanna managed the Bar's Board of Legal Specialization program for 500+ certified/expert level attorneys. Under her management, the Supreme Court authorized Administrative Law as a certified area of law, after a 30-year gap in a new specialty. This set the stage for further specialization with the addition of Construction Defect Law in 2022.

Before coming to the Bar, Deanna was the Law Office Superintendent for Hill Air Force Base's legal office serving a population of 20K civilians, active-duty Air Force and their family members. She retired in December 2018 after serving in the Air Force for 26 years. While serving, she worked as an Inventory Management Specialist for the first six years and later retrained as a Paralegal.

Deanna earned a master's degree in Human Resource Management from Webster University's George Herbert Walker School of Business and Technology. She holds an undergraduate degree in Management with a concentration in Leadership and two associate degrees: one in Logistics and another in Paralegal Studies. Additionally, she is a Certified Professional Manager and gained a Professional Administrative Certification of Excellence (PACE) from the American Society of Administrative Professionals.
